

Abstract

A method for applying a selected color space transformation profile when rendering image data includes providing a plurality of color space transformation profiles; receiving a media attribute, the media attribute identifying a desired characteristic of a media to be used in rendering the image data; selecting a color space transformation profile based on the received media attribute; and applying the selected color space transformation profile to render the image data.